

Research coaching for academics/researchers and research students

My name is Catherine Brys.

I'm an experienced coach and offer zoom/skype coaching for academics and research students.

My academic background makes me well-placed to coach you with any research-related challenges. I have academic qualifications in Science, in Business and in Arts & Humanities and experience of working in academia.

I can coach you with, for example:

- Developing the direction of your research
- Structuring a research proposal or paper
- Planning, researching and writing a PhD thesis or Masters dissertation

I have successfully coached both research students and highly experienced academics.

Testimonial from Prof. Dr. Wim Vanderbauwhede, University of Glasgow, UK:
"If you need to straighten out ideas for a research proposal or paper or want to develop your research strategy or career strategy, I can really recommend Catherine as a coach: she has coached me for several successful proposals and papers and for planning my research direction and is great at creating structure from my initial jumble of vague ideas." – Prof. Dr. Wim Vanderbauwhede

CV

Dr Catherine Brys holds a degree and PhD in Engineering/Physics from the University of Ghent, Belgium. She has a Masters in Business Administration (MBA), with specialism Strategy, from Strathclyde Business School, UK. She also holds a Postgraduate Certificate in Mediation, Conflict Resolution and Negotiation from Strathclyde University, UK. She is the author of a number of publications in peer-reviewed science journals and has presented at international conferences.

Catherine is a trained coach and has successfully coached both research students and highly experienced academics. She excels at helping people see clarity, structure their thoughts and keep up momentum. Catherine is driven by helping people feel fulfilled and achieve more impact in what they do.